

COURT USAGE CLARIFICATION MEETING

A committee meeting was held on March 11, 2013 to clarify our new court usage rules. In forming our new rules research was done with resources such as Alan Christensen, local pickleball professional as well as other pickleball senior communities in Arizona.

Overall after our first week of implementing these rules our membership has been very supportive.

Our committee discussed and agreed upon the following:

1. All four players must agree upon playing a foursome before they sign up on the board. If one person removes their name from the square the other three remaining players names will be erased and have to resign with a new fourth player. Example: One person is unaware their name has been signed up and has to leave or does not wish to play. Therefore, each person is accountable and expected to play the game. No searching for another person to complete the square. This slows down the sign in process. You sign up a foursome when you have four people ready and waiting to play.
2. If there is an available court open and no foursome listed for court 1 or 2, single sign up can put their four names down as a foursome and erase from individual sign up. If there is another square signed up under them, then erase the four names that are moving over and draw an "X" through the blank square. So that the people signed up below will know they moved over to the foursome sign up.

3. Foursome groups may also move their names to the single sign up for court 3 or 4 if there are fewer squares signed up provided that the single sign up squares have 4 players listed to complete the square. Example: Four names have been signed in the single sign up. The next square is open with no one listed – ok to move over. However, if there are only one, two or three names listed in the square you cannot move over until there is a fourth person in their square.
